Bohumir Kryl and His Band This Great Genius and Master of Music is in a Class All to Himself--He Has No Equal

The Redpath Chautauqua program from day to day has been reported in these columns, and while, in the rush of varied reportorial duties, we feel that we have fallen short of giving every feature of the splendid offerings commensurate review and merited endorsement, we have felt that these however, have not suffered any serious loss at our hands, for the whole community have been out to enjoy them and will hold them in pleasing and elevating remembrance through the coming years, for, indeed, has nothing so educating and refining, so uplifting and uniting, ever before been vouchsafed our community-life as the Redpath Chautauqua has provided.

The offering yesterday afternoon and again last night was Bohumir Kryl and his Band and the Denton Grand Opera Company; and surely were they at their best--especially last night. Perhaps they caught additional inspiration from their splendid responsive audience, and, indeed, they seemed to, and so appreciative were both singers and band of their generous reception here by an audience the finest the South--and therefore the world--can afford that they responded most graciously to encores, Prof. Kryl giving seven encores successively under one number. This is unprecedented, and nothing could be more complimentary on his part to an audience.

And now what shall we say of it all? "Oh that we were the viewless spirit" of one of those grand symphonies of last night, that we might just fly away from this physical task--and keep on flying. But, alas, we must to our work no matter how we feel! But we do feel. The echo of the whole grand revel is with us as we write. We could cr. at the least suggestion. We have had a musical debauch. Our hands tremble; we suppose we are moving our musical katechismmer "the morning after." Were you there last night? But of course you were--everybody was there. Do you feel as we do?

Yes, we have been with Bohumir Kryl and his band. We have discovered the bandmaster of the world--right here in Goldsboro; for Kryl was at his best last night. He showed it--he proved it; and we feel as Columbus must have felt when he discovered America. Kryl the Titan has found the open door to our soul, and he has swept through us like a storm, and we still live.

We have bathed in music: our spirit has been seized and carried off by tides of harmony, rivers, brooks, and cataracts of melody, white-capped waves of sweet tones, all bearing us away whither we know not, only into some strange seas we had never sailed before, by islands where basted mountains loomed in purple glory, and love and nobleness and unearthly beauty combined to break our heart.

It was not the songs from the opera, so thrilling and so grand; nor any tune in the music, though the songs were superlatively excellent and the melodies divine; but it was just the whole thing, the continual swelling up of rich chords breaking into fairy spray, and close-locked discords melting into voluptuous consonance, exquisite as spun glass, and the streaming, insistent passion of flutes and violins that tempted and tore our soul like sirens, and the occasional ripe, round note of a wood-horn rising like a moon upon the hushed orchestra, and the full, loud blare of brass, brave and bully as stamping horses and strong as the elephants of the Maharajah, and the superb chorus of human voices all singing, singing until it sounded like the "voice of many waters" that John heard in Heaven, a great white and gold cloud of song that wreathed and hovered upward, while underneath we heard the breathless, racing orchestra, the palpitating strings, the glad fanfare of trumpets, the thundering kettle-drums, with flutes and piccolos whistling like flying birds before the brow of a storm. cloud, and above all, Oh! sweet enough to "woo a soul from purgatory," sounding clear and limpid above the ocean roar of chorus and instruments--the voice of God Himself speaking through His handwork, and at last we knew what the Greeks sought to express when they made their myth of Orpheus, who

"With his lute made trees
And the mountain tops that freeze
Bow their heads when he did sing."

We are glad we never had heard this till now, when we are over forty. Such music is not for the young. It speaks in all its fullness and power only to those who have drunk deep of both pleasure and renunciation, who have felt the keenness of both personal sorrow and spiritual joy and the pang of both sickness of body and of heart. It is not simple, as life books when we are twenty, but wonderfully complex, as life looks when we are forty-five. The mystery and labyrinthine dimness of the universe come with years. And Bohumir Kryl interprets life, vague striving, tangled; light wrestling with darkness, as in the sublime anvil chorus, and yet, somehow, to the sense of God and of Genius, unutterably sweet.

And, Oh, the singing of "The Last Rose of Summer." Why the singer and the song and the rose; the grace and the sentiment and the beauty of the flower, so blended and harmonized it was as if some fair goddess of Greece had risen from the dust of centuries and had come back singing through the balmy May night, while the perfume from the petals of the rose she scattered so gracefully at her feet plinked the sweet notes through the lambent air.

And as for "Dixie"--well, we just know "Professor" Kryl never knew all the power of that song and tune before until he heard the spontaneous and prolonged and wild applause with which it was greeted here by his great audience.

"Dixie! It is the best tune in the world!"

Audiences that remain apathetic through infinite ragtime and sentimental airs will applaud when the band plays the Southern classic.

It does not seem to make any difference whether people are from Dixie-land or not. Northerners, New Englanders, Westerners somehow seem to warm up as responsively as one bred in old Kentucky when the lively strains of the inimitable melody begin.

When it comes to striking the bull's-eye of sentiment "Annie Laurie," "The Swanee River," "The Last Rose of Summer" and even "Home, Sweet Home" and "The Star-Spangled Banner," are distinctly outclassed. "Dixie" is hors concours--meaning the others are "not in it."

The old South is gone, but it had a certain beauty that "the world does not willingly let die." Its high spirit of chivalry, its keen sense of honor, its vivid loyalty to its convictions, these are fine flavors in the garden of human feeling.

We pay unconscious tribute to them when we applaud "Dixie."

We like "Dixie" because we like it. It is original; there was never a tune like it.

It is lively. There is sunshine in it and laughter, the tinkling of banjos the pat-pat of clapping hands. There is joy in it, cosmic, elemental joy of life.

There is home in it, and love and loyalty, and the glow of "our folks."

And it is human. It grips the heart. It gets into the feet. It stands the test of time, for you want to keep whistling it and it makes you twitch to dance.

When it is played it seems to say "Why can't everybody just be happy?"

God bless "Dixie-land," forever!

As we go to press this afternoon Senator Frank J. Cannon has the platform, and tonight the great Reno, magician and the Farinelli Company will be the entertainers. And tomorrow--the closing day, the program will be as published elsewhere in this issue.

Goldsboro responded promptly and gladly and nobly last night when Mr. Dickey extended his call for guarantees for next year's Chautauqua. On the first call he got enough subscriptions to secure a return date.

That's "The Goldsboro way."

MEXICO CITY IS REPORTED QUIET

Large Number of Men and Boys Drill in Streets

AMERICAN IS MISSING

Employed in Mexican Bank and As Newspaper Correspondent--Continued Sending Out News

Vera Cruz, May 11.--From Mexico City came late reports of quiet business conditions, but of large numbers of men and boys drilling in the streets. A few nights ago a mob gathered before the Brazilian legation and demanded that Luis D'Antin, an attaché of the American embassy, who had taken refuge there, be delivered over. Threats were made to kill him.

The Brazilian minister notified the State Department and added that he would only surrender D'Antin if he were overpowered by the mob. The antipathy to the attaché is due to the fact that he is the only American official left in the capital and because of his activity in relieving the distress of American non-combatants.

So far as is known no measures have taken to fortify the capital. At Guadalupe, which is a strategic point on the Mexican Railway entering the city, there are no signs of fortifications. The Federals, however, are taking steps to provision Puebla, about midway between Vera Cruz and the capital on the lines of the Inter-Oceanic Railroad. Gen. Navarete is said to be holding outposts east of Puebla watching the American lines.

A rumor has been current in the capital that in case Villa drives the Federals out, Huerta is planning to make a stand at Puebla, which has military advantages for defense.

An American named Foster, formerly a correspondent for a New York paper, but latterly employed in a bank at the capital, is missing and is supposed to have been imprisoned by the Federals.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Mrs. W. S. Stevens, of Smithfield is in the city, the guest of her daughter Mrs. Theo. L. Ginn.

Mrs. Jos. E. Brown, the Argus is glad to note, is doing nicely at The Goldsboro Hospital, where she is an operative patient.

All her friends here are glad to greet home again Mrs. T. A. Monk who has been spending some time in Washington, D. C. and Clayton.

Dr. Ross I. McElwee, of Statesville, who has been spending some days here at Chautauqua with Mrs. McElwee who is visiting her parents Capt. and Mrs. N. O'Berry, has returned home.

The universal verdict in Goldsboro is that the Redpath Chautauqua is of inestimable benefit in an hundred different ways to our people as a community. We will never let a year go by without it in the future.

Because the aviators failed to fly some time ago is no reason why the Berger Company will not make a successful flight, Friday and Saturday. They have made good in Greensboro, Wilmington and Charlotte and why not here. They guarantee to fly.

It will be of widespread satisfaction for she is universally beloved, to this community to learn that Mrs. A. R. Morgan, who yesterday underwent a serious surgical operation in The Goldsboro Hospital, is doing nicely today, and all her symptoms are favorable.

The military boys under whose auspices Goldsboro is to have its first aviation flights on Friday and Saturday of this week, will appreciate any assistance in selling tickets. Any one desiring to assist in selling tickets are requested to call at Capt. Edgar H. Bain's office, where tickets may be had.

SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION OPENS

Matters of Vital Interest to the Denomination Will come up During Session--Negro Seminary in the South.

Nashville, Tenn., May 11.--Matters of vital interest to the Baptist denomination will come before the Southern Baptist convention which will open its annual session in Nashville Wednesday. The convention sermon will be delivered by Dr. George W. McDaniel, of Richmond, Va.

Baptists here believe that Dr. Lang. Burrows, of Augusta, Ga., will be elected president of the convention. Dr. Burrows has been secretary for 32 years. The formal transfer of the handsome Baptist Sunday School building located in this city, will be made to the convention Saturday.

The reports of the efficiency committee and the committee on the establishment of a negro seminary in the South will be made to this convention. The former committee was appointed last year and will report on the general efficiency of the Baptist church in the South.

It is reported that the question of giving the church will come up for discussion tomorrow. The question of missions will occupy a large part of the program. Three years ago the Baptist pledged themselves to raise $1,250,000 for missions, over and above their regular contributions, to celebrate what is known as "the Judson Jubilee."

Another matter to come before the convention is the propriety of having Sunday school lessons for Baptist Sunday school separate from the International Lessons now used.

MORGAN-EXUM

A SURPRISE MARRIAGE LAST NIGHT OF TWO GOLDSBORO YOUNG PEOPLE, LONG SWEETHEARTS.

While a very happy culmination of a long courtship between two well-known and cordially esteemed and popular Goldsboro young people occurred, it was not any surprise. It was the marriage of Capt. Newell R. Morgan and Miss Margaret E. Exum, the happy event taking place at the home of the bride's mother Mrs. W. P. Exum, on Park Avenue, at 8:30 o'clock, Rev. J. Hallowell Dickinson, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, officiating, and Capt. Siegfried Cohen acting as Best Man and Miss Mabel Kornegay, of Mt. Olive, as Maid of Honor.

The groom is the son of Rev. A. R. Morgan of this city, and is well and cordially known in military and business circles. He is a young gentleman of exceeding refinement and has traveled a good portion of the world, having lived several years in Japan. He is associated with the business

Aeroplane Exhibit in Goldsboro

The J. S. Berger Aviation Company will give aeroplane flights in Goldsboro on Friday and Saturday afternoons at 4 o'clock, May 15 and 16, at Revillo Park.

A Wright Brothers passenger carrying aeroplane, weighing one thousand four hundred pounds with its aviator and passenger, will be used and some flights will be two thousand feet in height and in one the birdmen will rise to a height of eight to ten thousand feet, in addition to carrying passengers in flights.

The Berger Company have been giving very successful flights at Wilmington during the past two months and the Wilmington Star paid liberal tribute to the skill and courage of the aviators. As pointed out in the Argus yesterday, the Wright Brothers made and flew in North Carolina the first aeroplanes in the history of the world. It is peculiarly fitting that these machines should return to the State of their origin to exhibit their powers to the people among whom they were first made. It is the first time that public exhibitions have been given in North Carolina.

The Berger Company have exhibited in nearly every state in the Union and in Canada. At Denver, Colo., the aviator rose in the still clear evening air to a height so great that the machine was lost in the clouds, and the engine froze in the rarified air. With a cool head and a steady hand the aviator glided down with great circular sweeps of the machine, until he again rested on the ground.

At many flights made by these intrepid airmen they encounter dangers and difficulties that require presence of mind and their lives are in danger at every flight. A broken wing or propeller or an engine out of order may mean instant death to the aviators, but these machines have been brought to such a degree of perfection that accidents are now so rare that the news of an aeroplane accident creates a great sensation in the journals of the country.

Local Military Company E have guaranteed $500 to the Berger Company in admissions, and share in the profits over and above that sum. The funds are needed for their equipment and will be well earned through the excellence of the novel performance they have staged. The Chamber of Commerce has authorized the necessary expenditure to cover the cost of advertising the flights in the nearby newspapers. This afternoon four automobiles are scheduled to run out into the country to distribute advertising matter among the farmers and townspeople. It is hoped that these people will come to Goldsboro in large numbers and that the people of Goldsboro will come see the flights and support the local military company.

Many of the stores will close on Friday at 3:30 to enable the employees to see the aeroplane exhibitions and it is to be hoped that all will follow this example.

The admission is 50c. for adults and 25c. for children.

RAILROADS OBJECT TO ANTI-TRUST BILL

Not Opposed to Prohibition Against Interlocking Directorates--Object to All Trades Under One Bill.

Washington, May 11.--"I think if you make this bill retroactive you will give the railroad world the greatest shock it has felt in years. The minute you make this act retroactive and apply it to relations heretofore established you menace almost every important railroad in this country."

This was the prediction today of Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific board, in criticizing the Administration anti-trust bill before the Senate Inter-State Commerce committee.

Judge Lovett attacked the bill's provision prohibiting stock ownership by one carrier of another.

"I don't believe that there is an important system in the country," he said, "that would not be disrupted unless it made the proper application and showed that there was not such competition between them as is forbidden by this bill."

Judge Lovett said many roads secured stock ownership of others years ago. He declared that bill should not interfere with these, but be confined to the future.

A. P. Thom, general counsel for the Southern Railway, said that he and other railroad men protesting against the bill represent 150,000 miles of road. He declared the railroad problem should be studied by itself and regulatory laws enacted separately and not in a general trade commission measure such as the committee is considering.

Mr. Thom objected to the provision designed to prevent bankers connected with the fiscal operations of a railroad from being members of its directing board. He declared that millions of dollars are invested in American railroad securities by foreigners who look upon the presence of these bankers as a guarantee of the soundness of their investment. He criticized the provision requiring stock issues at par asserted that few railroads could issue stock at par and not many could issue bonds at par.

Mr. Thom said he was not opposed to the prohibition against interlocking directorates, or stock ownership, but would permit them when there would follow no violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

METHODISTS URGE NEED OF CHAPLAINS.

Meeting of General Conference of Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Oklahoma City, May 11.--Two annual conferences to be known as the "Mexican Border Conference and the Central Mexican Conference" were created; a proposal to establish an Indian conference to have jurisdiction over the extreme Western States was rejected, resolutions were received and the delegates engaged in a lengthy preliminary debate at today's session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, meeting here in quadrennial session.

A resolution was adopted urging the necessity of additional chaplains in the United States army and navy.

The ruling of Bishop E. E. Hose who presided today, that minority committee reports must be submitted to the whole conference before presentation to the conference, brought about a discussion on rules. An appeal from the ruling by the chair was not sustained by a vote. Considerable of the day's session was taken up in debate and disposal of several matters planned for today was deferred until tomorrow.

Rev. H. M. Dubose, of Atlanta, presented to the conference a redraft of the memorial from the North Georgia conference asking the body, in view of the seeming severance of all connection with the Vanderbilt under the decision of the Tennessee Supreme court they take steps to establish a new theological school. The memorial made no reference as to location.

A difference in the committee over the personnel of the commission to act in an advisory capacity with the colored Methodist church, resulted in that matter being returned to the committee in charge when it came before the conference. The original report favored naming the heads of connectional boards as the commission. A minority, however, recommended that the matter be placed in the hands of the home department of the mission board.

FOR SHERIFF.

Having yielded in all good will and feel service to my successful opponent four years ago, the present incumbent of the sheriff's office, I again announce myself a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Wayne county, subject to the will of the Democratic nominating convention.

If honored with the nomination I will give my entire time and attention to the office and do my best to fulfill its duties honorably and courteously and will ever appreciate the support of my friends.

Very truly,
WALTER M. GARDNER.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF WAYNE COUNTY.

Because of the different questions asked me about the Primaries to be held on May 16th, I am of the opinion that many do not understand same, therefore I am writing this.

The Primary for the election of delegates to the County Convention was fixed for three o'clock p. m. Saturday, May 16th, at which time delegates were to be selected to the County Convention, in Goldsboro, May 23rd. The County Convention was not to nominate any county candidate, but only to select delegates to the State, Judicial, and Congressional Convention, and fill any vacancy which might exist in their executive committee, which should be five in number.

Then the Congressional committee decided to hold an all day primary and also fixed Saturday, 16th of May as the day, from 7:00 a. m. until 6:00 p. m. in the country precincts and in the towns from 6:00 a. m. until 7:00 p. m. All Democrats who will agree to support the candidates nominated will be entitled to vote in the primary. They must first register at the time of voting by giving their names, age and residence.

The ballot will contain the names of all the candidates, each voter shall indicate his choice for Congress by writing opposite their names 1st, 2nd, 3rd, etc.

It is the desire that every body attend the polls that day and vote, if they do not, and their choice is not nominated they will have no one to name but themselves. Any one wishing to know the particulars about the rules, can see a copy of same, now in the hands of every poll-holder and registrar.

Respectfully,
H. B. PARKER,
Secretary.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
I hereby announce myself a candidate for renomination for Clerk of the Superior Court of Wayne County. During the time that I have served the Public as Clerk of the Superior Court, I have endeavored to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and courteously and I feel that my experience enables me to render better service, which if re-elected I shall endeavor to do.

Thanking you for past support, I am
Gratefully yours,
